CONTENTS

This cross marks the grave of an unknown American buried in Cambridge Cemetery, one of 3,811 interred there. Articles about this cemetery in England and the Sicily-Rome Cemetery near Nettuno, Italy, final resting place of 7,862 Americans, highlight this issue. The photo is by Donald C. Miller

The Last Friendly Face by Tom Mangan. The writer records his thoughts as he visits the Vietnam Veterans' Memorial and finds the name of one of his close Air Force comrades, Tom McCormick. He had flown missions to Vietnam from Guam and finally was killed when his plane crashed on takeoff. Four years after the memorial's dedication, McCormick's name was one of 95 added. 20

Tale of Two Cemeteries by Joyce Phelps and Donald C. Miller. In the first, the writer tells of the care taken of the Sicily-Rome Cemetery and the ceremonies there each Memorial Day. In the second, the ceremonies at Cambridge Cemetery in England are described. 22

A Vision of Greatness. The annual VFW Mid-Winter Conference in Washington was another highly successful gathering of the organization's leadership. Highlight was President Reagan's appearance at the General Session where he criticized Congress for failing to support the Nicaraguan Contras and the presentation of the Congressional Award to Rep. Bill Nichols (Ala.) at the Congressional Dinner. 24

The Voice of Democracy Tour Is Living History. The 53 State and Department VOD winners visited Washington Cathedral, Christ Church, Alexandria, Va., Mount Vernon, Arlington National Cemetery, the Iwo Jima Memorial, the Capitol, the Vietnam Veterans' Memorial and the Smithsonian Institution during their stay in Washington for the VOD finals. The first-place winner's essay delivered at the Congressional Dinner is on page 27. 29

VA Needs More Money

By Commander-in-Chief
Earl L. Stock, Jr.

During the Washington Conference, Commander-in-Chief Earl L. Stock appeared on March 8 before a joint session of the Senate and House Veterans' Affairs Committees to present VFW's legislative priority goals. Here are highlights of Commander-in-Chief Stock's presentation.

As you know, the first session of the 100th Congress produced few public laws affecting veterans. That is certainly not to say the Senate and House Veterans' Affairs Committees sat idly by and did not work to improve veterans' programs. Today, Senate and House conferees are working hard to iron out their differences in a massive legislative package that will impact on a multitude of veterans' programs and entitlements.

Veterans soon will be seeing improvements in the national cemetery system; expansion of the list of presumptions for veterans exposed to ionizing radiation and Agent Orange; the liberalization of employment programs, and vast improvements in the VA's health-care delivery system.

Yes, it has been a busy year. As always, it has been a year of cooperation between the VFW and the Senate and House Veterans' Affairs Committees. The close working relationship that exists between your staff director and counselor — Jonathan R. Steinberg, Mack G. Fleming, Anthony J. Principi, Rufus H. Wilson and their staffs — and the Executive Director of our Washington Office, Cooper T.

Holt, along with the National Legislative Service Director, James N. Magill, and their staffs, can attest only to the one common goal we all have — serving our nation's veterans.

As stated previously, few pieces of legislation were enacted into law during the first session of the 100th Congress. However, those laws that were will certainly have a marked impact on our nation's veterans. This past summer, in a Rose Garden ceremony, President Reagan signed into law legislation making the New GI Bill a permanent program. The VFW is proud to have played a part in this successful effort. Again, I would like to take this opportunity to commend Sonny Montgomery for his determined effort in pressing to have this most cost-effective program made permanent. Now America's youth may be afforded the opportunity to obtain a college education by virtue of their serving our great nation in the Armed Forces. I can think of no better way nor more fitting a tribute than to refer to this program as the Montgomery GI Bill.

Another new public law substantially changes the VA Home Loan Guaranty Program. Your respective committees must be commended for advancing this legislation so that many more veterans can realize the American dream of homeownership. You should also be commended for addressing in a responsible manner those problems which face the Home Loan Guaranty Program, particularly the high foreclosure rate and the large amount of time real property is held by the VA. We look forward to working with you in the future to keep this a viable program which can best serve the veteran.

As you know, this past September, meetings were held in Washington by the leadership of the VFW to establish our legislative priority goals for 1988. Much thought and discussion went into selecting and formulating these key legislative mandates, and it is indeed my honor to now present to you on behalf of our entire membership, the VFW's priority legislative program for 1988.

First and foremost, we have established elevating the Veterans Administration to a federal department as our Number 1 priority goal for this year. After many years of recognizing the need to establish the VA as a federal department, we are now closer than ever before to seeing this goal become a reality. I would like to thank Chairman Sonny Montgomery and the ranking minority member of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee, Jerry Solomon, for their untiring efforts in shepherding legislation through the House of Representatives which would elevate the VA to Cabinet level. I would also like to recognize Sen. Strom Thurmond, Chairman Alan Cranston and the ranking minority member of the Senate Veterans' Affairs Committee, Frank Murkowski, for introducing similar legislation in the United States Senate. Today, more than 60 Senators are cosponsors of this landmark piece of legislation. However, I am concerned. While it is only March of 1988, there is little time left for enactment. This being an election year, the second session of the 100th Congress will be interrupted by national conventions and, of course, an early adjournment date. I am concerned that misguided individuals may see this important and worthy objective as a vehicle to advance other proposals which are both controversial and complex. The VFW strongly urges that any attempt to link Cabinet status with any other legislative initiative be soundly rejected. Elevating the VA to a federal department should stand on its own merits and not be encumbered or be held hostage by special interests or ulterior motives.

The VFW has adopted as a priority goal the restoration of beneficiary travel to afford all veterans access to VA medical centers. As you know, the vast majority of veterans seeking treatment in VA facilities are Category A patients. Of course, this includes the most needy in the veteran population. For many of these veterans (the elderly, the infirm, the medically deprived), VA beneficiary travel money is the only means they have of gaining access to health care. Without beneficiary travel, a large number of these veterans will have no choice but to forgo needed medical attention. In the long run, many of these neglected veterans will end up with severe medical disabilities which could have been prevented. Legislation is now in conference which addresses the beneficiary travel issue. The VFW would encourage the conferees to resolve their differences so that the beneficiary travel program is adequately funded to ensure that no veteran will have to forgo health care.

'Many veterans truly believe their disabilities and illnesses are a direct result of their exposure to herbicides in Vietnam.'

With respect to the Veterans Administration's budget, we prevail upon the Congress of the United States to provide an adequate funding level for the VA which will not only maintain the basic integrity of its entire medical-care system and entitlement programs but will also enable it to properly prepare for increasing demands. Prior to my appearance before you today, the VFW presented to you its views on the President's proposed Veterans Administration budget for FY '89.

Not only has this budget failed to recognize or acknowledge the future challenges facing the Veterans Administration, it does not even provide a current services funding level. The Department of Veterans Benefits recently has come under criticism for slow claims processing, yet, the President proposes to cut 492 employees from this department, while VA regional offices are already hard-pressed to maintain acceptable adjudication schedules, their staffs would be cut by almost 250 employees. While the VA Home Loan Guaranty Program continues to be one of the most popular and heavily utilized programs, the Administration recommends cutting that overworked staff by 75 employees. The list goes on. For the last several years, the VFW has witnessed a continual attempt by the Administration to erode the integrity of the Veterans Administration and particularly its ability to serve our nation's veterans in a timely manner.

The VFW was shocked when we saw the FY '89 Administration budget proposal for VA medical care. We have established as a priority goal a commitment to ensure that the Veterans Administration's health-care system be continually improved and not allowed to be undermined or eroded. Only in this way will treatment always be provided to all veterans seeking VA health care. Not only does the Administration's proposal fail to allow for needed improvement in the VA health-care system, it does not even provide sufficient resources to maintain current services. Veterans will suffer. At a time when our veteran population is rapidly aging and will require more extensive, sophisticated and labor-intensive medical care, the Administration is proposing to cut medical care staffing by 1,782 employees. While hard budget numbers create the illusion of an increase in funding for medical care, let me point out this apparent increase amounts only to just 2% over last year's level. By the Administration's own estimate, inflation is projected at 4.5%. These numbers speak for themselves. VA medical-care funding for FY '89 is being cut. It appears the Administration does not believe that the VA even deserves a current services budget to care for those who answered the nation's call. Well, the VFW believes the VA deserves more than just a current services funding level. Veterans deserve more than just a "make do" budget.

Own America's First Silver Dollar

Original 200 year old coins — real legal tender of our 13 colonies!

These historic silver dollars (1772-1821) were our 13 colonies' most popular.

May, 1988 MONTPELIER, VT. International Coins & Currency, Inc. a national distributor of numismatic coins, is offering for sale a limited number of original coins up to 200 years old — among the first large silver dollars minted in the Americas. These magnificent silver coins once circulated in our original 13 colonies. Because of their high silver content and popularity, Thomas Jefferson recommended that they become official legal tender of the United States.

Minted from 1772-1821, these silver dollars were the most popular coins of our 13 colonies and were used as legal tender in the USA up until 1857. As collectors turn to American coin classics, these scarce silver dollars are increasingly sought-after.

Struck at the Americas' oldest mint in Mexico City and denominated 8 Reales, these silver dollars were the forerunners of the first U.S. silver dollar minted in 1794 — and served as the most favored trade coin in the world. Yet huge silver melts and the fact that relatively few were saved from destruction make these coins "sleeping" classics. Each silver dollar is a big 39.5 mm in diameter, contains 27.07 grams of .903 pure silver, and each comes with a Certificate of Authenticity attesting to its fine quality and genuine status.

Because the supply was originally discovered in the Far East, genuine "Chinese merchant markings" are often visible and serve to authenticate the coins.

Because of the age and historical significance of these coins, you might expect to pay up to several hundred dollars for one. But while supplies last, they are available on a first-come, first-served basis to collectors at: (#7144A)

1 coin $75; 2 coins $150;
3 coins $215 (save $10);
5 coins $345 (save $30);
10 coins $675 (save $75).

There is a limit of 10 coins per customer. Your 100% satisfaction is guaranteed — you may return your order for a prompt no-questions-asked refund within 15 days (less postage and handling of course). To order your coins by credit card, call toll free at 1-800-451-4463, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week (including Sundays). If you prefer, send check or money order in full amount to: International Coins & Currency, Inc., 11 E. State St., P.O. Box 218, Dept. 489, Montpelier, Vermont 05602. Add $3.75 for 1 coin or $5.00 for more than 1 coin to cover postage and handling. Special presentation cases for individual coins are also available at $2.50 each. ICC's Numismatic Director is Life Member No. 3798 of the American Numismatic Association.

the VFW fully supports adequate funding of the VA's major and minor construction programs to provide for the replacement and modernization of aging VA facilities. It is well known that many buildings are over 30 years old and some cannot undergo any design changes or other improvements because of their poured concrete construction. The VFW commends the Administration's decision to implement the replacement and/or modernization programs in Atlanta, Ga.; Bronx, N.Y.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Newington, Conn., and Pittsburgh, Pa. We also applaud the nursing home and domiciliary construction programs in Tampa, Fla., and Mountain Home, Tenn., as well as the clinical improvements in Beckley, W. Va.; Nashville, Tenn.; Perry Point, Md., and San Antonio, Texas. However, we were disappointed to see an overall reduction in the Administration's FY '89 construction budget of $22 million. We believe the Administration must support an aggressive construction program which not only meets today's needs but also addresses the future needs of the Veterans Administration.

'I would like to . . . commend Sonny Montgomery for his determined effort in pressing to have this most cost-effective program made permanent.'

Speaking of the future needs of the Veterans Administration, we must not ignore the nation's commitment to provide for the needs of our aging veteran population. Your respective committees must be commended for recognizing not only the physical needs of our aging veterans but their psychological needs as well. Your actions have allowed the VA to increase the number and diversity of its non-institutionalized extended-care programs. These programs are intended to allow the aging veteran to experience an independent lifestyle — a more productive and purposeful life. Respite care allows the veteran to enjoy living with his or her family. At the same time, it allows the family to occasionally catch its breath from the great demands of geriatric care. Adult day health care, again, allows the family to remain intact. Home-based hospital care reassures the family that their veteran-family member will receive the professional care he needs while remaining a part of the family unit. The VFW commends and applauds the Senate and House Veterans' Affairs Committees in working to allow those veterans who require some professional health care to remain with their families. We must all remember that the country that turns its back on its defenders in their time of greatest need also turns its back on its future.

As we are concerned with the health-care and entitlement needs of our nation's veterans, we are also concerned about our veterans continuing to serve our nation through productivity. The Administration, inconceivably, has requested no additional funds for the Veterans' Job Training Act which has placed almost 60,000 Vietnam Era and Korean War veterans into jobs. Without the VJTA, those 60,000 veterans would now be drawing from the federal treasury rather than contributing to it. The Veterans' Job Training Act is not a drain on the economy but rather something which revitalizes and strengthens it.

The VFW supports full cost-of-living adjustments for all VA compensation recipients and military retirees. I would like to take this opportunity to address an Administration proposal which would, in our opinion, have an adverse impact on the VA's compensation program. I am referring to the indexing of compensation benefits to the annual change in the Consumer Price Index. We believe this action would, in all likelihood, reduce Congressional review of the program. In the past, Congress has been very compassionate and fair in addressing the needs of our nation's service-connected disabled, and we foresee no benefit to veterans in substituting an automatic process for the personal attention of your committees and, for that matter, the entire Congress.

I would now like to address an issue which has taken too long to resolve — Agent Orange. There are still questions that must be answered. Many veterans truly believe their disabilities and illnesses are a direct result of their exposure to herbicides in Vietnam. Much money and time have been spent in an attempt to resolve this issue but to no avail. I call upon your committees to advance legislation which will liberalize the adjudication procedure so as to place the burden of proof on the U.S. government. ■

Long Overdue Tribute to Women

By Sen. Frank Murkowski

Robert Shirliffe was an American patriot. Enlisting in the Continental Army in 1778, Robert served as a common soldier fighting the British. In three years of combat Robert was wounded three times. It says something about the medical practices of the day that it wasn't until Robert's third time in an Army hospital that "his" true identity was discovered. Robert Shirliffe, it turned out, was in reality Deborah Samson, a Massachusetts housewife — one of the first of many American women who have served our nation in time of war.

Since before the founding of our republic and throughout our history, American women have fought for freedom selflessly and with little or no recognition for their contributions. While there are other fascinating stories of women who posed as men to see active combat, thousands of women have volunteered for the U.S. Armed Forces to serve in support roles, aiding our nation's fighting men. Today there are more than a million women veterans of the two world wars, Korea and Vietnam. And though many women gave their lives in defense of America, women veterans have never been properly honored, until now.

Last November, President Reagan signed Public Law 99-610, authorizing construction of the National Women Veterans Memorial on federal land in Washington, D.C.

The memorial, long a dream of women who serve or have served in the Armed Forces, will give the veterans the recognition they deserve. With the creation of this memorial in the nation's capital, a tribute to their dedication and sacrifice will take its place alongside monuments to the men who served, and it will become part of the national heritage.

The time is long past due that we recognize the contribution made over the past 200 years by American women to our military efforts in defense of freedom. During the Revolutionary War, women served as nurses, laundry and kitchen workers and cannon swabbers. In the Civil War, women were spies, couriers, nurses and doctors. Women nurses were in the midst of the Spanish-American War.

During the World War I, women served in the Navy as yeomen and radio electricians; 34,000 women served in the Army and Navy nurse corps. Three were awarded Distinguished Service Medals. Thirty-eight died in the service of their country. In World War II, almost half a million women served in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard. At the same time, more than 1,000 women pilots ferried planes as Women Air Force Service Pilots (WASPs). More than 50,000 women participated in the Korean War and about 10,000 served in Vietnam.

Today, according to Department of Defense estimates, 220,000 officer and enlisted women comprise over 10% of the active U.S. forces.

The law authorizing the construction of the memorial mandates the creation of a Women in Military Service Memorial Foundation. The foundation is charged with the responsibility of funding the project and moving it forward, toward ground-breaking by 1990.

At present, the foundation is considering a site for the memorial at an entrance to the Arlington National Cemetery outside Washington. The foundation says it wants the memorial to:

- Illustrate the partnership of women with men in the defense of the nation.
- Set forth the historic contribution of women in the military.
- Symbolize the dedication and strength of all women.
- Inspire women on duty today and in the years to come.

Plans now call for the memorial to be set "in a natural landscape that includes the serenity of water," because the foundation wants it to be a place of contemplation. A nationwide competition will be held in the near future to select the memorial's final design.

I'm honored to have been asked to serve on the national advisory committee for the memorial foundation. It's an opportunity for me to join with all Americans to make sure we pay an appropriate tribute to the women veterans of our country by establishing a memorial to them that will stand for all time. ■

Anyone Remember?

In January or February, 1944, I was assigned with a group of about 800 men to participate in a three- to four-week special service training. We were to be used as a strike force to make a small landing about 10 to 15 miles north of Anzio. It was believed by Gen. Mark Clark that this small unit could be used as a diversion to entice the Germans to withdraw some of their division from Anzio. I was hospitalized with pneumonia so did not participate in this diversionary action. I have never been able to find out the result. I would appreciate hearing from anyone who participated with any information they have on this operation. — Walter J. Brueggemann, 909 So. Lexington Parkway, Saint Paul, Minn. 55116.

A Victory

As this letter from Reader's Digest shows, we have won a small victory. After many years of trying to get justice for the traitorous acts of Jane Fonda who not only consorted with the enemy during Vietnam, but also caused our servicemen to endure additional torture at the hands of the North Vietnamese, Reader's Digest has agreed to stop advertising and selling her works.

"Thank you for your letter and your comments regarding the Jane Fonda video tape. While we have selected this tape on the basis of its professional quality, which is our primary concern with all Reader's Digest products, we have received a number of negative comments regarding the Fonda video.

LEGISLATIVE

VA Home Loan Program: In a continuing review of the Veterans Administration's home loan program, the House Veterans' Affairs Committee held another hearing on this extremely popular and beneficial program. This one focused on the program's solvency and how economic conditions have impacted on it. Following are excerpts of VFW comments at the hearing.

"The Veterans of Foreign Wars is firmly committed to working for the improvement of this program, so important to all veterans and particularly at this time to younger Vietnam veterans.

"We must state from the outset that it is our heartfelt contention that the VA home loan program is first and foremost a veteran's entitlement program. As such, there should be absolutely no expectation that it always operate at a profit. That is simply not in the nature or spirit of an entitlement program. Entitlement programs very seldom deliver a profit, although through the majority of its existence, the VA home loan program has managed to serve this nation's veterans while operating in the black.

"The VFW heartily applauds efforts of the Senate and House Veterans' Affairs Committees on the formulation of the most comprehensive VA home loan program legislation to be enacted into law in recent history, Public Law 100-198, the Veterans' Housing Rehabilitation and Program Improvements Act of 1987. We believe this law will contribute toward improving the operation and financial solvency of the VA home loan program.

"Even so, because of certain unfortunate economic factors prevalent in the national economy, foreclosures and program costs are increasing. Many of the VA home loan program's problems are due to circumstances beyond its control; however, there is also room for improvement in its operation. With respect to reducing program cost, we believe two main objectives are to be achieved: reducing the number of foreclosures and improving the handling of defaulted properties by the VA.

"With respect to reducing foreclosures, we believe veterans should be extended periods of grace and receive priority assistance from the VA in order to make their mortgage payments and keep their own homes. Veterans and ultimately the VA Home Loan Guaranty Program would benefit.

"We also believe considerable improvement can be made in the manner in which defaulted properties are handled. It is of paramount importance to reduce the amount of time real property is held by the VA. Real property is very expensive to hold since the VA must pay taxes on all such property in its inventory, as well as securing it against vandalism and weather.

Although the current decline in interest rates should increase VA property sales, new and more aggressive marketing techniques could further enhance such activity. Another means of enhancing the VA Home Loan Guaranty Program's assets would be increasing its portfolio of vendee loans since they generate collections in the form of principal and interest payments. Additionally, funds generated by asset sales enter the Loan Guaranty Revolving Fund (LGRF) as offsetting collections which offset obligations and, correspondingly, outlays.

"Also under discussion today is the potential benefit of mortgage insurance versus the current 1% VA funding fee and then setting up an insurance pool which could be invested. It is a matter of record that the Veterans of Foreign Wars strongly opposes any increase in the user fee for VA-guaranteed home loan. We further recognize that if this funding fee were replaced with mortgage insurance that the veteran would at least get something for his money. That is, if the veteran's loan were to go into default, mortgage insurance would afford a measure of financial protection. However, we would also point out that such insurance, even if subsidized in part by the government, would have to be paid year after year and could result in increased cost to the veteran. We are also concerned that such a program may have as yet unforeseen adverse implications for the program. So while we do not fully support this proposal at this time, we do acknowledge that further investigation is in order.

"We will also comment at this time on legislation which is being proposed to repeal the Administrator's authority to establish maximum interest rates. The Veterans of Foreign Wars strongly opposes eliminating the current authority of the VA Administrator to establish the VA home loan interest rate. We view the often posited argument that this authority limits a veteran's ability to negotiate a more favorable rate as specious. The VA-established rate is, in fact, only a ceiling which certainly does not disallow a veteran and a lending institution from negotiating a lower mortgage rate. The VA-established rate not only provides the veteran with greater parity in an unequal market place, it also serves as a national benchmark providing both the mortgage and the building industries with a degree of stability that they would not otherwise enjoy. We are convinced that eliminating the administrator's authority to establish an interest ceiling would be a serious mistake, working against the veteran's best interest and seriously jeopardizing a most beneficial program."

SERVICE

Honoring World War I Veterans: Commemorating the 70th anniversary of U.S. entry into World War I, the French government decided in late 1987 to recognize living U.S. veterans who served in France.

A certificate on behalf of the French government will be issued to living veterans of World War I who meet the basic eligibility criteria of an honorable discharge and service in France from April 6, 1917 through Nov. 11, 1918. The Veterans Administration has agreed to assist in this project and is issuing the certificates on behalf of the French government.

Requests for certificates should be sent to the Director, Veterans Assistance Service (27), VA Central Office, 810 Vermont Avenue, Washington, D.C. 20420. Information required includes veteran's full name, VA claim or Social Security number and service serial number; current address, telephone number and date of birth; branch of service and WWI unit/division/group; date left U.S. for France and date landed in France; location of veteran's service in France and battles in which the veteran was engaged; awards or decorations received, and the veteran should date and sign this submission.

Organizations also can request that the certificates be forwarded to them for presentation. The required information must be provided concerning each veteran, however.

DoD Tightens Payments: The Department of Defense has recently discovered that bills have been paid for medical care at VA facilities that should never have been paid. This is particularly true in the case of military retirees. Some military retiree beneficiaries, whose bills for VA medical care have been fully paid in the past, will be required in the future to cost-share their care at rates established by Congress and applied by the so-called means test. Because any earlier payments were made incorrectly by DoD, no action will be taken to recoup past payments from either the beneficiary or the VA.

This is not a change in DoD or VA policy. DoD beneficiaries (military retirees, for example) who have been receiving care in VA facilities may continue to do so on the same space available basis under VA eligibility criteria (the means test). If the beneficiaries are eligible for care at the VA, their care will be paid for by the VA or the patient who is accepted on a space available basis may have to cost-share his or her care by making a Medicare co-payment in accordance with Public Law 99-272, the means test.

SECURITY

POW/MIA Update: At the Midwinter Conference, President Reagan repeated his assurance that his Administration will continue to press for resolution of the POW/MIA issue. He acknowledged this issue as one of the highest national priority.

Prior to his remarks, the POW/MIA Committee met on March 6 and heard retired Army Gen. Robert C. Kingston, deputy to Presidential emissary Gen. John Vessey, give a briefing on the negotiations in Hanoi and its results. Kingston said Vessey told Vietnamese officials the POW/MIA issue was not just another political issue with the American people. He urged the Vietnamese to resolve discrepancy cases as soon as possible and raised the question of any live Americans in Vietnam.

Negotiators suggested specific steps to speed up the progress, such as providing training to Vietnamese search teams. When Hanoi representatives said Vietnam wants to return to its two-year plan, Vessey rejected it because his goal is the fullest possible accounting of missing Americans, not just simply to work on this issue for two years and then quit.

The U.S. team agreed to consider Hanoi's humanitarian concerns, and a team of U.S. prosthetic experts has visited Vietnam and issued a report on rehabilitation requirements. A non-profit foundation is being established for this purpose.

In reviewing progress to date, Kingston said Hanoi promised to return the remains of 23 servicemen, but on March 2 had provided only 17 and information on three others. Asked about their promise of 23, Vietnamese officials indicated that was all they were prepared to return. Kingston used this as an example of the difficulties in negotiating with Hanoi. The 17 remains have been sent to the Central Identification Laboratory (CIL) for identification.

A fourth round of humanitarian talks began in late March. The U.S. POW/MIA technical team was to return to Hanoi for more talks. The Vietnamese may answer why they did not return all 23 remains as promised and may provide additional information on the discrepancy cases.

The POW/MIA Committee also reviewed the VFW's POW/MIA resolutions and were advised that Commander-in-Chief Stock has discussed personally the issue with the Secretaries of Defense and State and the President and Vice President. Among the points he made: issue must remain one of the highest national priorities; emphasis must be placed on the recovery of any live Americans from Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos; government-to-government contact must be speeded up to resolve this issue as fast as possible, and the VFW supports retention of Gen. Vessey as Presidential envoy to Hanoi. If conditions warrant, he should be appointed Presidential emissary to Laos and either he or General Kingston be appointed to the Defense Intelligence Agency Senior Review Group.

did not know, or heard it so long ago that I cannot remember when, that Sand Ridge was the last area for the different Indian tribes. Again, thank you for a fine article both informative and accurate. It made me prouder of the home area more than I have been in a long time. — Barbara Penrod Lipe, Rt. 1, Box 284A, Carbondale, Ill. 62901.

Unique?

We have a member of Post 5315, Peacock, Mich., whose record we believe is unique. Our member, Harold Allison, enlisted in the U.S. Army early in 1917 and was in France. He was in Germany until June, 1919, was discharged in that year and returned to civilian life. Early in 1942, he enlisted in the Navy Seabees and served three years in the Pacific theater. He was discharged a CPO and stayed in the reserves. He was recalled to active duty during the Korean War. When discharged, he returned to civilian life. He is 89, in good health, drives every day and lives with his wife in Baldwin, Mich. — Don Vanden Bos, Sr., 4206 Walnut Hills Lane, S.E., Kentwood, Mich. 49508.

Urges Yes Vote on VA

I would like to encourage each and every member of the VFW, the Auxiliary and their families, or even the families of other veterans to write their Senators encouraging them to vote affirmatively to elevate the VA to a Cabinet-level post. Many brave men and women have answered the call to uphold and defend our great Constitution. Isn't it about time to say, "Thank you for a job well done"? Please take the time to write. — Lloyd Lapore, Past Commander, Post 4050, 6917 N.W. 79th St., Kansas City, Mo. 64152-2134.

Thanks Service Officer

In a letter to Mail Call (February), Arthur Rodrigues, VFW Service Officer, was praised. Let me add my two cents, but I'll sign my letter. I went to Mr. Rodrigues's office on behalf of C.G. (Chick) Miller who was discharged from Kaiser and in a convalescent hospital to the tune of about $2,500 to $3,000. Chick had three or four tanks shot out from under him, and I thought he deserved a spot in the VA hospital. Chick passed away before he could be admitted, but I would like to thank publicly Arthur Rodrigues for all he tried to do. — W.S. Weller, 8301 Mission Gorge Rd., SP 170, Santee, Calif. 92071.

Backs WWII Memorial

Washington Wire (March) reports legislation would establish a World War II Veterans Memorial. As a veteran of World War II, I believe it is a good idea, but I also believe Franklin D. Roosevelt should be so honored for his courageous leadership and foresight during those trying years. For a man who did so much for America during his Presidency and not be honored by at least one memorial is a national scandal. Speaking of ingratitude, when Dec. 7, June 6 and other historic dates roll around it is hard to find coverage and the significance of those dates in our newspapers. How quickly we forget. — Paul A Bednar-chik, RD 2, Box 956, Shamokin, Pa. 17872.

Author's Query

Researching a book about the U.S. Army and Air Force helicopters which supported the Australian infantry, New Zealand artillery, Korean infantry and U.S. Marine ground units in Viet Nam, 1965-67, I would welcome any information concerning aviation units, types of helicopters flown, missions, dates, liaison and, if known, the identity of the allied units supported. — John Mateyko, Box 24030, Cincinnati, Ohio 45224.

Author's Search

I am doing research on the collision of the USS Chaffinch (AM-81) and the HMS Pentland Firth that happened on the night of Sept. 19, 1942, in New York Harbor. B-17 Crew Sought

For a plaque dedication ceremony at O'Donovan's Hotel in Clonakilty, County Cork, Ireland, July 23 and 24, I would appreciate help in locating former crew members of a USAAF B-17, "Taint a Bird" (serial number 42-3900) that force landed in Clonakilty April 7, 1943. The 11-man crew was not interned and was later released on May 2, 1943, but the mascot, a monkey named Jo-Jo, died of the cold. Their names were W.K. Thomas, J.B. Stapleton, C.P. Haynes, W. A Query

When I was discharged from the U.S. Navy on June 20, 1946, at Camp Wallace, Houston, Texas, all of us had to turn in our dog tags and ID cards. What was the reasoning behind this? Did this pertain to all Navy personnel or was this just a policy at Camp Wallace? Also, did our World War II dog tags have a notch and for what purpose? — Richard J. Gilbreth, 5501 County Road D5, Antonito, Colo. 81120.

Merchant Marine Ineligible for VFW

Action by the Defense Department, directed by a federal judge, granting veterans' status to WWII merchant seamen who served between Dec. 7, 1941, and Aug. 15, 1945, does not make them eligible for VFW membership, according to a March 23 statement from VFW National Headquarters.

Recognition of these former members of the merchant marine as veterans is for purposes of applying for VA entitlement programs only, the statement said.

VFW membership under its Congressional Charter, Constitution and By-Laws is limited to only U.S. citizens who have served honorably as officers or enlisted persons in the U.S. Armed Forces in any foreign war, insurrection or expedition recognized as campaign medal service. This service is governed by authorization of the issuance of a campaign badge by the U.S. government.

Merchant marine service does not meet the VFW membership requirement of "honorable campaign medal service" with the U.S. Armed Forces as set forth in the VFW's Congressional Charter, Constitution and By-Laws.

The VFW has opposed veterans' status for former WWII merchant mariners. Most recently at the 88th National Convention this was expressed in Resolution 725 that said "the term 'veteran' means a person who served in the military, naval or air service and has been discharged or released therefrom under conditions other than dishonorable" and the organization will oppose efforts by groups or individuals to acquire the designation of veterans on the basis of service to the U.S. during war or armed conflict, "such service not having been rendered in the active military, naval or air service of the United States . . ."

Several VFW members have written in seeking clarification of the merchant marine status as prospective VFW members. Others have condemned granting the former merchant mariners veterans' status, while some have supported it. Some VFW members served in the merchant marine and later went on to service with the U.S. Armed Forces.

According to the authoritative Encyclopedia of World War II:

"The U.S. War Shipping Administration took control of merchant marine operations in February, 1942. It absorbed 131 operators of U.S. flag ships, recruited and trained merchant seamen and dealt with the 22 maritime unions which represented many of the men who served aboard the famous Liberty and Victory ships.

"These ships took the brunt of the Axis submarine attacks on U.S. merchant shipping, especially in 1942-43. In addition to supplying Allied forces in Europe and the Pacific, the merchant marine also carried troops to North Africa, Normandy and the Pacific Islands.

"Of the 250,000 men who voluntarily served in the U.S. merchant marine in World War II, 5,638 died as the result of enemy action."

By comparison, however, two Army infantry divisions, the 3rd and 4th, sustained 4,922 and 4,097 killed in action, respectively, while eight suffered more than 3,000 dead. Overall, Marine Corps killed in action totaled 19,733 with another 4,778 listed as "other deaths." Strength of the Marine Corps was 699,100; two of its six divisions lost more than 3,000 dead. Of the Navy's nearly 4.2 million, 65,614 died from all causes.

POW Medal Ready

The Congressionally-authorized Prisoner of War Medal is ready for award to former POWs or their families, the Defense Department has announced.

To qualify, a veteran must have been taken prisoner during an armed conflict and have rendered honorable service during the period of captivity.

The medal may be awarded posthumously to legal next-of-kin, but Defense Department officials said next-of-kin of missing in action for whom there is no evidence of POW captivity are not eligible.

Applications are available from the military services and in addition will be provided by the VFW Washington Office to VFW Department adjutants/quartermasters. A toll-free number, 1-800-873-3768, has been established to take requests for applications and provide information about the medal.

Former prisoners of war or their next-of-kin may apply for the medal by writing the military records center of the appropriate branch of service. Information to verify POW status and character of service during imprisonment should include full name, service number, Social Security number, VA claim number, date and place of birth, branch of service, unit when captured and dates of confinement and release as a POW.

The Last Friendly Face

It was early morning when Tom McCormick dropped me off at the aerial port at Travis Air Force Base. It was early in the morning when I arrived in Washington to return the favor.

By Tom Mangan

For the most part, we went to war alone. Nobody to see us off, we had said our good-byes at home before individually making our way to the West Coast.

Everyone waiting for that plane was in uniform, each face tense, each voice hushed, and all looked tired. Many had spent the night on benches in the waiting area. The transient quarters on base were overcrowded with replacements following the Tet Offensive. Offbase, the motels were second-rate, and each one had to share a room with a stranger, but that was okay. Privacy was a scarce commodity, and everyone was willing to take what little he could get.

Thanks to Tom, I had spent a quiet evening with friends.

He and I had been classmates in navigator training at Mather AFB.

We didn't have much in common — he was from Southern California; I was from New York; he had a family; I didn't — but none of that mattered. Tom was one of those people who always found the common thread that makes a friendship.

When Undergraduate Navigator Training (UNT) class 67-19 graduated, we went our separate ways. Tom went to electronic warfare school and then on to Castle AFB for more training before being assigned to a B-52 crew at Travis. I went to navigator-bombardier school and was assigned to an EB-66 outfit stationed in Takhli, Thailand.

A lot of us from that UNT class were headed for Southeast Asia. As our port calls started coming in, Tom spread the word that he and Caroline had an extra room and wanted each of us to spend the night with them. They thought there was no sense in our staying anywhere else. One by one, we passed through, used the guest room and went on our way.

Seeing an old buddy again is one of a soldier's few joys. On my last night before going to Thailand, we talked about old times and old friends. We ate real food around a real table. We watched television, and I played on the floor with Tom's infant son. More than anything else, I wasn't alone.

We were supposed to get together when I got back, but it did not work out like that. That summer, Tom was transferred to Fairchild AFB in Spokane.

On paper, going to the Strategic Air Command was a Stateside assignment. In reality SAC's B-52 and KC-135 crews were hardly ever home. As often as not, when they weren't pulling alert for seven days at a clip, they were in Southeast Asia.

Unlike the other aircraft in Vietnam, the B-52s and KC-135s weren't assigned to PACAF. Throughout the war, SAC maintained control of the aircraft and the crews who flew them. The crews were always assigned TDY, and always rotated home before they could accumulate the 180 consecutive days in the combat zone needed to qualify for a tour in Southeast Asia. Officially, they never showed up in the statistics because they were only supposed to be there on a short-term supplemental basis.

The system served two purposes. From a public relations standpoint, it reduced the number of men officially in the combat zone, and from an operational standpoint, it enabled SAC to maintain its highly trained nuclear alert force while conducting bombing and refueling operations in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

For the crews, it meant six months in Southeast Asia, six months at home, year in and year out, over and over again. They got combat pay for those missions. But at any time they could get a permanent change of station and be sent to Vietnam for a full year's tour with no credit for the missions they had flown or the time they had served in combat.

In March, 1969, Tom's crew was deployed TDY to Anderson AFB in Guam, home of the 43rd Strategic Air Wing and the 72nd Strategic Air Wing (Provisional).

The missions out of Guam were exhausting 12-hour-long monsters. With a full load of bombs, the B-52s were so heavy they could barely make it off the ground. On hot days, it wasn't unusual for a plane to use every inch of the runway on takeoff roll, then skim low over the water before gaining altitude. Every sortie required inflight refueling prior to hitting the target, and many required another inflight refueling on the way back to Guam.

Most of the missions were flown over suspected enemy troop concentrations in the south, but almost every day the B-52s bombed targets, such as those near the Mu Gia Pass on the border of North Vietnam and Laos that were heavily defended with SAM-2 missiles, early warning radar and other anti-aircraft defenses.

In Thailand, we were briefed daily on how many planes had been lost, where they had gone down and the status of the crew. One after another, my friends and classmates showed up on that briefing board. Tom's name came up on May 10, 1969. His bomb-laden plane had crashed on takeoff from Anderson. Tom and the rest of the crew (Capt. Larry I. Broadhead, M/Sgt. Harold B. Deel, 1st Lt. Maurice E. Lundy, Capt. Russell L. Platt and Maj. James L. Sipes) were killed.

Like Tom, many of the men I knew who died in the war had been stationed outside Vietnam. Some had been on Guam, others in Okinawa, the Philippines or Thailand. When the Vietnam Veterans Memorial was dedicated in 1982, I didn't know whether their names would be on the wall.

That Memorial Day, I saw two of their names on television during NBC's coverage of the dedication. Later I read Jan Scruggs's book, "To Heal A Nation," and found that all the names were on the wall, except Tom's.

Four years after the formal dedication of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, the names of 95 men who had been killed on combat missions technically outside the war zone and of 13 men who had died of wounds received in Vietnam were added to the wall. Tom's was on the list. It was time for me to go to Washington.

On Memorial Day, 1986, I found Tom's name where it had been added to line 101 of panel 24W. It was brighter than the rest.

For some reason, I don't have a picture of Tom, and yet I was able to recognize his brother as he stood next to the wall. I met his wife again and his son, who now towered over me. After 18 years, I was finally able to say thanks. ■

TALE OF TWO CEMETERIES

By Joyce Phelps

SICILY - ROME

Feeling deeply indebted to the thousands of men who were killed in the operations that led to Rome's liberation in 1944, Americans and Italians meet every year in Nettuno to pay tribute. They don't want the memory of those who gave their lives to fade.

The special remembrance, held on Memorial Day at the Sicily-Rome American Cemetery, usually attracts a thousand or more participants. Italian police and military troops, honor guards, color guards, the mayors of Anzio and Nettuno and the carabinieri (Italian police) band give colorful but solemn demonstrations.

Aging veterans stand close by holding banners and war medals. Flag and general officers from NATO and U.S. Forces in Southern Italy pay respects to their fellow Americans with speeches and a wreath-laying ceremony.

More than 7,860 American war dead and a thousand Britons are interred under white marble headstones. The names of the 3,094 missing are engraved on the white marble walls of the chapel on one end of the 77-acre cemetery.

The hour-long ceremony is a reverent one, a somber one. This year it is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m., May 30.

"There's nothing about that ceremony that isn't solemn and fraught with meaning," said the U.S. Navy coordinator and announcer for the U.S. military participation. "It's very sobering. An emotion it brings to mind is 'This could have been me. This could be my son, my compatriot.' It serves as a reminder that peace is a fragile state."

Before World War II, Anzio was a small fishing port and resort town, not well known to foreigners but popular among wealthy Romans, who spent their leisure time on the long sandy beaches. The Tyrrhenian Sea on the west and the Laziali hills on the east provided a pleasant backdrop to those on holiday.

Next door, the small town of Nettuno, noted for its Castello Medievale San Gallo and medieval wall, was an equally popular bathing resort.

But vicious battles on the Anzio-Nettuno peninsula during World War II changed Anzio from a quiet coastal town into a symbol of the sacrifices of war.

The Allies had landed in Sicily on July 10, 1943, and defeated the enemy in 38 days. The Italian government surrendered on Sept. 8. The next day the Allies landed at Salerno, south of Naples.

They were halted at the Garigliano River, so on Jan. 22, 1944, Allied forces landed on beaches at Nettuno and Anzio in hopes of setting up a beachhead above the Gustav Line, a system of German fortified positions that stretched across Italy and blocked approaches to Rome. The landing was to coincide with an Allied offensive being made inland on the Cassino front by Gen. Mark W. Clark's 5th Army.

Although the amphibious landing, opposed by some military leaders but advocated by British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, caught the Germans by surprise at first. The German commander, Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, under orders from Hitler, was determined to drive the Allies back to the sea. He wasted no time cordoning off the beachhead with the scattered units he had in the area.

In his memoirs, Kesselring says he had suspected a possible landing from the sea after Cassino was hit, but his advisers told him they had seen no signs of a buildup in Naples, the major nearby port.

So, Kesselring was caught off guard when the American and British forces, amid cheers from the Italians, set out from Naples Jan. 21, 1944, with 253 ships. The force included two LSTs that could carry heavy tanks and guns ashore to launch an immediate attack or stave off any counterattack.

The plan was to move over the Alban hills for an easy victory in Rome.

Gen. John P. Lucas, commander of the U.S. VI Corps of the 5th Army, was in charge of this Allied invasion, code named Operation Shingle. He was expecting an immediate counter-attack, so he held his men back for two days until reinforcements arrived. By this time the Germans had built up sufficient strength to pin their opponents to the beachhead.

Between late January and May, a see-saw battle turned Operation Shingle into one of the bloodiest campaigns of World War II.

Six German air raiders were able almost immediately to break through the screen protecting the fleet and bomb one of the landing craft. The British destroyer Janus was sunk Jan. 23, killing the commander and 150 men. Later, the hospital ship St. David was hit.

An Allied attack involving specially trained Rangers ran afoul at a cost of hundreds of lives. Only six of the 767 Rangers sent on the raiding mission returned.

On Jan. 31, the Sherwood Foresters, soldiers from the Midlands of England, ran into trouble while trying to break the barrier that hemmed the Allies into the beachhead. Their losses were among the heaviest that any Allied battalion suffered in the four-month Anzio battle.

Italy's soggy coastal terrain and rugged hills were a big stumbling block for the infantrymen. Both sides suffered heavy casualties until the two Allied forces linked up on May 25. An Anglo-Franco-American offensive liberated Rome on June 4, 1944.

Italians and Americans have joined together in the Nettuno commemoration every year since the cemetery was inaugurated in 1953.

"It's a show of solidarity, of friendship. It's a manifestation of their partnership with us," said the Navy coordinator.

Nettuno is about a 2½- to three-hour drive north of Naples, driving along the coast through the towns of Minturno, Formia, Gaeta, Terracina and Latina. From Rome, the drive takes about an hour.

On the cemetery grounds, a museum contains one bronze and four fresco maps of the invasion and explains the World War II military operations in Sicily and Italy.

Some of the stark grave markers are decorated with fresh flowers and potted plants.

"I saw an older woman putting flowers on a soldier's grave — it wasn't her son — a neighbor heard she was coming and asked her to do it," a Navy officer said. "I thought 'Each one of those graves — what a waste, what a tragedy. Why do armed conflicts have to settle international disputes?'"

Originally, 14,500 more Americans were buried there, but their remains were returned home. ■

CAMBRIDGE

In the rolling foothills of Cambridgeshire, England, every year in June men and women assigned to American bases, with the cooperation of American Battle Monuments Commission and many British organizations and individuals, come together for a memorial service to pay tribute to those who made the ultimate sacrifice: their lives.

The service is dedicated to all the American soldiers and sailors who died while stationed in the United Kingdom during WWII. The Cambridge Cemetery's 30 acres of ground were donated by Cambridge University and work was begun in 1943. It is now under the American Battle Monuments Commission jurisdiction.

Madingley Memorial Cemetery, as it is called locally because it is on Madingley Road, is hidden from view by 6½ miles of hedge surrounding the entire cemetery. Once you walk into the cemetery the beauty and peacefulness take your breath away. Rising against the vibrant green countryside of England is a sea of 3,811 crosses and stars of David, each decorated with a small spray of flowers and U.S. and British flags. A wall, 472 feet long, bears the names of 5,125 individuals missing in action, including those of Glenn Miller and Joseph Kennedy, elder brother of the late President.

I took my time strolling down the pathways and paid particular attention to the names and the states where these soldiers and sailors came from, many far from home for the first time and never to return. More than soldiers and sailors are buried here. American Red Cross workers are included, but the graves that hit me hard were the ones that read, "Here Rests In Honored Glory A Comrade In Arms Known But To God." Many family members were visiting the gravesites. Many had travelled great distances to show loved ones where a grandfather, father or husband is laid to rest.

My heart went out to these small family groups, many visiting for the first time, and I heard weeping as the stories were told of what happened to their loved ones so far from home.

It was a cool gray afternoon on that June day. A slight mist was in the air, and it felt as if it would begin raining at any moment. The scene was moving, with all the people from many walks of life who came to pay their respects to those who gave their lives. Some of the groups rep-

A VISION OF GREATNESS

“You have stood firm. You are an American hero the VFW is proud of.”

With those words, Commander-in-Chief Earl L. Stock introduced President Ronald Reagan at the General Session of the VFW's annual Mid-Winter Conference in Washington, D.C., last March 7.

Moments before President Reagan was escorted to the podium in the massive Sheraton Washington ballroom, the Department and State winners of the Voice of Democracy contest were seated in the front row. They had met with him personally shortly before.

Noting that he had returned only recently from meetings in Brussels with other NATO leaders, President Reagan said, “I’d travel halfway around the world to meet with the VFW.”

Recalling the service to the nation VFW members have rendered, he said they “have defended America’s heritage and fought for the freedom, not only of our nation, but of peoples all over the world.

“Today as veterans you’re still defending freedom. Whether it is supporting adequate defense budgets or aid to the freedom fighters in Nicaragua . . . members of the VFW are still on the front lines, still leading the charge and still showing what true patriotism really means.”

President Reagan reaffirmed his dedication to the POW/MIA cause when he said:

“We have a moral bond as sacred as any a free people can make with one of their own to close no books, write no last chapters, reach no final conclusions until we have the fullest possible accounting of every soldier, airman, aviator, Marine and civilian lost in Laos, Cambodia or Vietnam.”

He also reminded his listeners that he supports creation of a Cabinet-level Department of Veterans Affairs.

Of NATO, President Reagan said that next year it will mark its 40th anniversary — “40 years of freedom and democracy in Western Europe and without armies clashing anywhere on the continent.”

He said Europe has known few longer periods of total peace since the fall of Rome more than 1,500 years ago. “When I hear about peace marchers in Europe or here, I think of our young men and women in uniform. They are the real peace marchers.”

Urging support for Senate ratification of the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces Treaty recently negotiated with the Soviet Union, President Reagan recalled the events leading up to the Soviet decision to begin treaty negotiations, including deployment in Europe of U.S. INF weapons.

“Now, I can’t think of any better demonstration of what you and I have been saying for years — that the road to peace is through American and Free World strength,” he said.

The treaty, he added, would not have been signed “if I didn’t believe we could effectively verify it.”

“If I trusted the Soviets, I wouldn’t have insisted on the strict verification provisions that we have in this treaty, the toughest that have ever been adopted,” he said. “Trust everybody, but cut the cards.”

Wryly, he commented that the people who said deployment in Europe of Pershing IIs and ground-launched cruise missiles was provocative are now claiming credit for the INF Treaty. "Nuts," he said, quoting Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe's reply to the Nazi demand to surrender at Bastogne.

He added, however, that modernizing conventional and nuclear weapons in Europe and going forward with the Strategic Defense Initiative, which he called an insurance policy, are musts.

A major speaker at the General Session was Ladies Auxiliary National President Joan Katkus, who presented the VFW with her group's $70,000 contribution to VFW programs.

Negotiating priorities now are, he said, a 50% reduction in strategic arms, a conventional arms balance in Europe and an effective, verifiable and global ban on all chemical weapons.

On Central America, Reagan quoted Stock as writing members of Congress that "the real issue before Congress and the country is not the Contras; it is Communism in Central America."

Concluding, he took a swipe at Congress for failing to support the anti-Sandinista Freedom Fighters:

"Too many of the opponents of aid to the Freedom Fighters claim to be the heirs of Franklin Roosevelt, who told us, when the odds were stacked against us, that America had a rendezvous with destiny and then led us to the fight — and of Harry Truman — who helped Greece and Turkey stand up to Communism and led us into NATO . . .

"Courage hasn't exactly been the watchword of some opponents of Contra aid. Harry Truman said 'the buck stops here,' but last week aid opponents tried to pass the buck of responsibility for abandoning in the field the young men and women of the democratic resistance. And that ploy failed, as it should have. Now it's time for Congress to show that it knows you can't have real peace negotiations when one side has helicopter gunships and the other has bandages. Recently Daniel Ortega said he is going to crush the Freedom Fighters and he has thrown out the peace mediator, Cardinal Obando y Bravo. You know where Ortega stands. Isn't it time for Congress to have the courage to show where it stands?"

At the General Session, State and Department Commanders were honored for membership gains made by the organization in recent weeks, placing its total at 13,323 ahead of the same period of last year.

Auxiliary National President Joan Katkus presented Commander-in-Chief Stock with a $70,000 check representing the second half of the Auxiliary's pledged support for VFW programs.

Representing the Vietnam Women's Memorial Project, which seeks to add a statue of an American servicewoman to the Vietnam Veterans' Memorial, Diane Carlson Evans urged those at the General Session to support S. 2042, introduced by Sen. David Durenberger (Minn.), and H.R. 3628, introduced by Rep. Sam Gejdenson (Conn.), to overcome opposition to the woman's monument expressed by Fine Arts Commission and the National Capital Planning Commission. (See From the Hill on page 10.) VFW representatives testified in favor of the proposed legislation before a Senate subcommittee last February. So far S.2042 has 58 co-sponsors, she said. The goal is 100.

The next day, Tuesday, March 8, Stock and most of the 2,000 or so VFW leaders from all States and Departments presented the VFW's legislative proposals to the House and Senate Veterans' Affairs Committees. He emphasized what he saw as the need for a higher VA budget for the 1989 fiscal year and cancellation of an Administration proposal to eliminate employees in medical care facilities and other VA programs. (The text of his remarks appears in Command Post, page 4.) His words won the firm support of the committees' members who were present.

In the evening, Rep. Bill Nichols (Ala.) was presented by Stock with the VFW Congressional Award for outstanding service to the nation. The award includes a $1,000 check, which Stock announced Rep. Nichols requested be turned over to Auburn University. In addition, names of the top nine winners of Voice of Democracy scholarships were announced. The first place winner, Frederick W. Speer, a senior at the American High School in Zweibrücken, West Germany, read his essay. His first place prize was the $16,000 T.C. Selman Scholarship. His text is on page 27.

These two events were the highlights of the annual Congressional Dinner at the Sheraton Washington Hotel, which attracted 2,000 persons, many of them members of the Senate and House.

Rep. Nichols, a member of the House Armed Services Committee and chairman of its investigations subcommittee, said he was accepting the award in behalf of the 241 Marines killed in the terrorist attack five years ago at the Beirut Airport.

"The investigations subcommittee conducted the inquiry," he recalled. "No one who took part in that investigation will ever forget it; the magnitude of the tragedy indelibly seared our consciousness."

That investigation, he continued, led to the enactment of the Nichols-Goldwater Act "that memorialized those Marines' deaths with the most far-reaching reform of the U.S. military establishment since World War II."

The subcommittee put the blame for the Beirut tragedy on the commander on the ground and his superiors in the chain of command right up to the U.S. European commander, he said.

"We held them responsible, but responsibility is only one side of the coin," he said. "The other side is authority to carry out a responsibility. Subsequent inquiries revealed that America's combatant commanders in the field, who would be responsible for our very survival as a nation if war should come, had limited authority to exercise genuine command—to organize their commands, train and employ forces as they saw fit and establish the chain of command to their subordinates. We held the European commander responsible in 1983. In 1986, Congress gave him and the other combat commanders the fullest measure of authority so they and their subordinates right down to the commander on the ground have the means to carry out their responsibilities."

In the Persian Gulf, Nichols said, "I am pleased to report that the new chain of command is working."

Nichols, a World War II 8th Division veteran and amputee and member of Post 4432 in Sylacauga, Ala., said his state has more than 400,000 veterans, and his office devotes much of its time to addressing their needs. Concerns of active duty service personnel in Alabama also are important.

Nichols added that he accepted the award "in deep appreciation and admiration and respect in which I hold this great organization, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, which indeed is committed to serve the more than 2 million American veterans it represents, along with their widows and orphans."

He cited some examples of VFW assistance to Alabama veterans who won their cases for disability compensation before the VA Board of Veterans Appeals.

Rep. Nichols also praised the VFW for its assistance in the establishment of Alabama's first veterans' nursing home, which is in his Congressional district.

Noting the VFW's commitment to a strong national defense, Rep. Nichols said he views his prime responsibility in Congress "to keep this nation strong... America today is great because it continues to be strong..."

"As a member of the United States Congress, I am a firm believer that peace comes through strength and that it is the better course of wisdom to spend dollars for readiness than to risk American lives."

In closing he added:

"There are fewer and fewer combat veterans coming to Washington to serve in Congress. As I said earlier, the major powers of the world have not been in direct conflict with one another for almost 50 years now, so we have not had an entire generation at war as was the case when many of us in this room were young men.

"However, I believe that of all the duties to which the VFW is responsive certainly one of those duties must be to impress upon the present generation, who have never worn the uniform nor smelled the smoke of battle, the basic ideals on which this nation was founded. So tonight,

COMMITTEES CONVENE

National defense and the VA 1989 budget were major concerns of two committees meeting at the annual VFW Mid-Winter Conference in Washington from March 4 to 8.

Other national committees met to discuss program growth up to the midpoint in the 1987-88 year and set goals for the balance of the 12-month period to assure success in their areas.

Alfonso Robelo, a leader in the anti-Sandinista Nicaraguan Democratic Resistance, appealed for United States help in overthrowing the Marxist-Leninist government of that Central American nation.

"We need the same pressure that we applied against Somoza, including military, political, economic and social support," Robelo said. "How can we go against Communism without full backing?"

Discussing the provisions of the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces Treaty, Ambassador John Woodworth, who represented the secretary of defense at the INF negotiations with the Soviets, said the treaty establishes a basis for future negotiations on arms control, has the support of U.S. allies and enhances overall U.S. security.

He added that the USSR would not have entered into treaty talks if the U.S. under President Reagan had not increased its defenses to the point where the U.S. was able to negotiate from a position of strength.

Gen. Arthur E. Brown, Army deputy chief of staff, said the Army is developing a tougher soldier, NCO and officer even though it is receiving

I salute our great organization — 2 million strong and growing — and would remind us all in the words of President Reagan:

"We must never forget that freedom is never really free; it is the most costly thing in the world. And that freedom is never paid for in a lump sum; installments come due with every generation. All any of us can do is to offer the generations that follow a chance for freedom."

a smaller portion of the Defense Department budget.

The committee adopted a resolution condemning Panama's strongman, Gen. Manuel Noriega, under indictment in Miami and Tampa for working with Colombian drug kingpins. The resolution also denounced him as an alleged collaborator of Cuba's Fidel Castro and the Soviet KGB.

The resolution also called for renegotiating the Panama Canal Treaty and reinforcing American troops in Panama in case hostilities against those there now should break out.

Two opposing views of the proposed 1989 fiscal year VA budget were expressed before the National Legislative Committee when Rep. G.V. (Sonny) Montgomery, who chairs the House Veterans Affairs' Committee, and VA Administrator Thomas K. Turnage spoke.

Montgomery said the $30 billion budget is insufficient because it provides for no growth or allows for current services adjusted for inflation.

Turnage said the VA's 1989 budget proposal of $865 million more than this year's would not be possible if the veterans did not have the support of Congress and the American people. (See Vet Views on page 31.)

Other committees that met during the conference were Safety, Voice of Democracy, Americanism, Community Activities, Buddy Poppy, Youth Activities, Civil Service and Employment, National Hospital, Life Member and POW/MIA.

'AMERICA'S LIBERTY: OUR HERITAGE'

Voice of Democracy First-place Essay

It is, and yet it is not. It is a glimmer of hope for mankind, and yet it is not unlike the Holy Grail — perfection, but somehow always just out of reach, except in America. It is a principle which is our birthright; yet it is an idea which has been contemplated through the millennia by men and women who have asked themselves: What is it? What is that sacred, but elusive, idea that we call liberty?

Is liberty a bell, like the famous bell of Philadelphia which, though cracked, still tolls the golden notes of freedom? If liberty were just a bell, then the Czar Kolokol bell outside the Kremlin in Moscow would also be a symbol of personal freedom. And since this bell in the Soviet Union weighs 193 tons, making it the largest bell on the face of the earth, we would expect it to produce far more liberty than our own special bell in Philadelphia. But from the rusty bronze throat of the Czar Kolokol bell do not flow the blessed melodies of liberty.

Is liberty, then, a statue, like that world-renowned statue of ours in New York harbor which holds aloft a glowing torch and gazes out at the tired, poor, teeming masses which long to immigrate to the great land of freedom? If liberty were just a statue, then the Brancusi statue in the Milepogany Museum of Art in Bucharest, Romania, would also be a symbol of that sacred idea contemplated by the great thinkers of the past. The Brancusi statue, like our own, is that of a woman standing, holding in her upraised hand a torch, but from this torch do not radiate the blessings of liberty.

Clearly, liberty is not merely a statue or a bell. But if it is not made of iron or marble, or fashioned out of any kind of inanimate matter, then why did it matter so much to Patrick Henry that he demanded death as its only alternative? The people of the present join those of the past in asking: What is liberty, besides just a word that sounds good with "and justice for all"?

Liberty is the precious heirloom of our heritage, bequeathed by our nation's courageous founding fathers to every man, woman, and child fortunate enough to be a United States citizen, to secure freedom and liberty as our birthrights; the brave soldiers of our Armed Forces have fought and toiled in the face of incredible resistance since the founding of our great nation over 210 years ago. They've helped keep liberty alive in America. All our citizens have kept our land a vestige of hope in a world where the freedoms of speech, press and religion are as rare as flawless diamonds.

America has made it her mission to see the day when all the world's people will enjoy the same inalienable rights guaranteed to us by the brave, brilliant men and women of our heritage. Thanks to them, America is the champion of liberty, a nation founded on that noble principle and dedicated to translating the ingenious philosophy of our Constitution directly into reality. Tilton said, "Liberty will not descend to a people: A people must raise themselves to liberty." How very true, and how very many times in our history

America has raised herself to this most priceless of all commodities.

However, simply recognizing the triumphs of our past is not enough. The fact that George Washington heroically crossed the Delaware, that Elizabeth Cady Stanton crusaded for women's rights, that Martin Luther King, Jr., peacefully rallied for racial equality — these deeds of vision and valor mean nothing if we of the present are content to coast along on the ever-waning momentum of the past. We face the perpetual responsibility of keeping liberty alive and well, if not through extraordinary or heroic feats, then through quiet, dedicated patriotism in everything we do. The young people of today face this noble duty, along with the middle-aged and the elderly.

Indeed, all Americans share the same ultimate challenge: to insure that one day our Statue of Liberty will be joined by the Brancusi statue of Romania in radiating freedom to all who gaze upon their torches, to ensure that one day our Liberty Bell will be joined by the Czar Kolokol Bell of Moscow, and that all the world's other bells, from Belfast to Belgrade to Leningrad, will ring out in unison and toll the harmonious chorus of liberty, the precious heirloom of our heritage.

Speer was the first-place winner in the 41st annual Voice of Democracy essay contest. Sponsored by Post 9659 and its Ladies Auxiliary, of Ramstein, West Germany, he is a senior at the American High School in Zweibrücken. His prize is the $16,000 T.C. Selman Scholarship.

Other winners were:

Lori Ann Martens, a senior at Gustine, Calif., High School, sponsored by Post 7635 and its Ladies Auxiliary, Gustine. Her second place award is a $9,000 scholarship.

Patrick Brooks Jordan, a senior at Smithfield, N.C., High School sponsored by Post 5886 and its Ladies Auxiliary in Smithville. He won a third place $6,000 scholarship.

Julie Ann Jackson, a senior at Oak Park High School in Kansas City, Mo., sponsored by Post 5606 and its Ladies Auxiliary in Kansas City. Her fourth place award was a $4,000 scholarship.

Scott O. Rowland, a senior at Evergreen, Colo., High School, sponsored by Post 8991 in Evergreen. His fifth place prize was the $3,000 scholarship.

Dylan Townsend, a senior at Shorewood High School, Seattle, Wash., sponsored by Post 3348 and its Ladies Auxiliary, Seattle. His sixth place award was the $1,000 Francis J. Tallman Scholarship.

Ziad W. Munson, a junior at East High School in Duluth, Minn., sponsored by Post 137 and its Ladies Auxiliary, Duluth. His seventh place award was the $1,000 Joseph O. Hansen Scholarship.

Heather Janae Easterday, a Meade, Kans., High School senior, won the Robert J. Stock $1,000 scholarship. She was sponsored by Post 3661 and its Ladies Auxiliary in Meade. This eighth place award was established last fall by Commander-in-Chief Earl L. Stock in honor of his brother who was killed during World War II.

Meliesa Hawley, a junior at Powder River High School, Broadus, Mont., sponsored by Post 1595 and its Ladies Auxiliary in Broadus. As ninth place winner, she is the first recipient of the newly-established $1,000 Walter and Doris Marshall Scholarship. The late Walter Marshall was long active in the VOD program. His widow Doris still is.

VOD TOUR IS LIVING HISTORY

“Without a living past, we have only an inert present and a dead future.”

Of course when Carlos Fuentes uttered those words, he did not have the 53 Department winners of the VFW Voice of Democracy contest in mind, but his words could well be applied to their six-day trip to Washington, D.C., for the finals.

A highlight was their visit on Sunday, March 6, to the Washington Cathedral, also called the National Cathedral because of the major events of national significance held there. Officially, however, it is the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, visible for miles atop Mount St. Alban, the highest point in the nation's capital.

With their escorts, including Voice of Democracy Chairman Jack McIsaac and several chaperones, the high school students listened with rapt attention as their cathedral guide, Tripp Jones, described the spectacular edifice that has become a repository of part of the nation's heritage.

“It was George Washington's idea, presented to Congress, to build a great church to celebrate the nation's joys and sorrows,” Jones said. “Congress granted a charter in 1893 when Benjamin Harrison was President with three goals: religion, education and charity. In 1907, the foundation was laid.”

Jones said the cathedral is not yet finished. “Two more towers are rising, St. Peter and St. Paul, and there are windows to install,” he continued.

As Jones explained that the cathedral's Gothic style with its high, soaring arches “lift the people's eyes to heaven,” the students instinctively looked upward.

“Its purpose is to inspire and teach, and we learn from the pictures carved in stone, from the windows and from the cross-shape of the building itself,” he said.

To emphasize his point, Jones pointed to the massive west rose window high above them and told the students that its colors, changing at different times of the day, represent the beginning of light in the universe in “God's act of creation.”

In addition to the religious themes that naturally pervade the cathedral, Jones singled out the many references to American history that add to the cathedral's uniqueness.

Near the entrance on the north side, Jones showed them the statue of Abraham Lincoln saying farewell to his fellow townspeople in Springfield, Ill., before leaving for Washington, never to return.

Above this is a stained glass window depicting in blue and gray a Civil War campfire and an arch bearing on the left a Union Army cap and opposite a Confederate cap. Below are 36 Lincoln pennies in the floor representing the states of the Union at the time of the Civil War.

On the south side is a statue of George Washington as he may have appeared entering Christ Church in Alexandria.

Jones described Lincoln as the nation's savior, and Washington as its founder, whose dream was the construction of the cathedral.

In addition, Jones recalled that

Robert E. Lee, honored with Stonewall Jackson in a stained glass window in another portion of the cathedral, surrendered on Palm Sunday, 1865, and Lincoln was assassinated on Good Friday, five days later.

Escorting the students to the south side of the cathedral where President Woodrow Wilson is buried, Jones explained the sheathed sword on the crypt symbolizes his hopes for peace through the League of Nations after World War I. The tomb also bears the seal of New Jersey, where he was governor, and Princeton University, of which he was president, as well as the U.S. Presidential seal. Small tiger heads atop the columns represent Princeton's mascot. Wilson is one of nearly 150 persons interred there.

Nearby is the Scientists and Technicians stained glass window dedicated to space flight and containing a tiny portion of a moon rock donated by former astronaut Michael Collins, a one-time student at St. Albans School on the cathedral grounds.

At the richly carved pulpit, Jones said Martin Luther King preached there on Palm Sunday, 1968, only to be killed three days later in Memphis. It was his last sermon.

VOD winners begin their visit to Christ Church, Alexandria, Va., where George Washington served as a vestryman and Robert E. Lee was confirmed.

He led the students through several of the chapels, including the War Memorial Chapel, where, at the time of the dedication of the Vietnam Veterans' Memorial, the names of all the more than 57,000 Americans killed in the Vietnam War were read.

In nearby St. John's Chapel, Jones pointed out the statue and tomb of Norman Prince, founder of the WWI Lafayette Escadrille, flanked by the U.S. Flag and the French Tricolor. Highlighting the chapel are the 200 needlepoint kneelers on the chairs, each dedicated to a famous American and bearing a symbolic design. For example, the John F. Kennedy cushion has his famous words, "Ask What You Can Do for Your Country." Jones said to maintain objectivity, cathedral officials asked the Smithsonian Institution to submit the names of those to be honored. Each cushion was done by a woman volunteer, including the queen of England.

At the conclusion of the tour, Larry Gniotczynski, of VFW National Headquarters, presented Jones a VFW Certificate of Appreciation for acting as a guide for the past several years of Voice of Democracy Winners' tours.

In keeping with George Washington's idea of marking the nation's periods of joy and sorrow, the cathedral was the scene of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's funeral, a memorial service for the late former President Harry S. Truman, dedication of its nave on July 4, 1976, the Bicentennial of the Declaration of Independence, services for the hostages in Iran and the funeral of Gen. Omar N. Bradley.

The tour to the cathedral came the day after the winners visited Christ Church in Alexandria, Saturday, March 5, founded in 1773, and where George Washington served as a vestryman and Robert E. Lee was confirmed. A large pew in the church is preserved, for it was Washington's. It also bears two markers commemorating the National Day of Prayer in 1942 when President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill sat in Washington's pew to pray for victory.

Following their visit to the church, the winners toured the churchyard where many early members of the congregation are buried and where Union troops camped during the Civil War.

As the bus drove on to Mount Vernon, the guide pointed to several landmarks relating to Gen. Lee, the school he attended and the house he lived in as a child.

One portion of a street they passed was paved with cobblestones on Washington's orders by Hessian prisoners.

Touring the home of George and Martha Washington, the VOD winners were struck by what they thought was the relative smallness of Mount Vernon, compared with its pictures that make it appear much larger.

Returning to Washington that afternoon, the VOD winners went to the Smithsonian to view exhibitions that particularly interested each one.

That evening, the winners had dinner at Gadsby's Tavern in Alexandria, made famous as the scene of Washington's farewell to his fellow Virginians when he left for his first inauguration in New York. As a private citizen, Washington often took his ease at Gadsby's.

Following the Washington Cathedral tour, they visited the Iwo Jima Memorial and Arlington National Cemetery, where Deanna Dascomb, of New York, and Marty McKinzie, of Texas, laid the traditional wreaths at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The winners also witnessed the changing of the guard ceremony at the Tomb by the 3rd Infantry and toured the Memorial Amphitheater. They also visited the graves of John F. Kennedy and Robert Kennedy, both cut down by assassins' bullets.

Monday, March 7, was another full day. They toured the Capitol, posed for pictures on the steps, saw money being printed at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and toured the National Archives where the Declaration of Independence is on exhibit. They also visited the Washington Monument and joined many other tourists in admiring the simple beauty of the Vietnam Veterans' Memorial with the names of Americans killed in Southeast Asia.

So after soaking up the many examples of the living history in the nation's capital, 53 winners of VOD contests in home areas began planning how they as citizens will help shape the future. ■

VA Improving Image

VA Administrator Thomas K. Turnage March 24 marked his second anniversary in the post to which President Reagan appointed him by making his first visit to the National Headquarters of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Kansas City.

Since Adjutant Gen. Howard E. Vander Clute, Jr., was in Minnesota for a VFW membership roundup, Turnage was met at the entrance of National Headquarters by Assistant Adjutant Gen. Edward L. Burnham and taken on a tour of the nerve center of the more than 2 million-member organization.

Turnage visited with program directors who explained to him the variety of activities the VFW offers its members and enable it to improve the communities where its 10,000 Posts are located and to assist young people in each of them become productive citizens.

He also visited the James E. Van Zandt Museum where he viewed military uniforms of an earlier era, pictures of Past Commanders-in-Chief and other memorabilia, much of it donated by VFW members.

Quartermaster Gen. Herbert Irwin explained various insurance programs and the organization's sound financial condition.

In a brief interview at National Headquarters, Turnage said he established a strategic plan for the VA that would take a period of time to accomplish but would streamline the operations and thereby enable the agency to serve veterans more effectively.

This involves employing the latest in electronic technology, he said.

"All of this is within the scope of our technical ability and creates better conditions," he said. "For the first time we can see how our programs are working and determine the precise regimen of care in each hospital."

Since he has been administrator, Turnage said, technological advances have been made in electronic data processing, and closer relations have been achieved between central management and offices in the field.

"Also we have made a priority effort to improve the VA's image among its 240,000 employees and the American public at large," he said.

This all seems to be paying off for the VA because, as Turnage pointed out, recently 12 VA career senior executive service managers were chosen by President Reagan for the 1987 Distinguished and Meritorious Awards.

"The Office of Personnel Management has called the VA the top agency in the government," Turnage said, because it needs fewer supervisors per thousand than any other.

Over the past two years, Turnage said, "we have been able to achieve adequate funding for the VA consistent with Congressional standards."

The $27.9 billion VA budget for 1989 has been approved by oversight and review committees, Turnage said, and is a good one. (VFW criticism of the proposed budget by the Commander-in-Chief is in Command Post, beginning on page 4.)

A major VA concern now is establishing the VA as a Cabinet-level department, but Turnage said he expects it to be passed by the Senate.

"The House approved it 399-17; the President has endorsed it, and Sen. John Glenn's Governmental Affairs Committee has had two hearings on it, and a third one was scheduled for March 28," Turnage said.

Turnage cautioned, however, that the addition of a rider calling for judicial review of VA decisions denying compensation claims could ultimately lead to a Presidential veto if the bill is passed by the Senate.

Otherwise, as it stands now, Turnage sees only minor technical details to be ironed out, such as how many VA positions would come from the agency's management and how many would be appointed. "The cost," he said, "would be minimal." ■

Skin Cancer Is Treatable

By Paul Martin

Sixty-four-year-old Jack Richardson is president of a large advertising firm in Chicago. Jack and his wife live in a pleasant home in suburban Oak Park. Their children, two boys and a girl, are married and live in other states.

A combat infantryman in the South Pacific in World War II, Jack keeps in superb physical condition. Golf, tennis, swimming and jogging have kept his weight down and his stamina up. "I only weigh ten pounds more than when I came home from the South Pacific," said Jack. "I work in a high-stress business and follow a diet that helps me deal with it. I'm careful to get sufficient rest and relax as much as possible."

Four years ago Jack noticed that a mole near the right side of his nose was changing color. The mole had been there for years, and he had never paid too much attention to it. However, now he saw a difference in its appearance.

"I went to my family physician," Jack said, "and when he took a look at it he immediately sent me to Dr. George Engel, a dermatologist in Oak Park. He said Dr. Engel had extensive experience in diagnosing and treating skin cancer, and the mole looked suspicious."

Dr. Engel is one of four Chicago-area dermatologists qualified to perform Mohs skin-cancer surgery. This is a special technique developed by Dr. Frederick Mohs, of the University of Wisconsin. In this method the physician removes the tumor in serial stages and makes a microscopic inspection of the tissue at each stage of the operation. With this approach the surgeon can be sure of removing all the malignancy while retaining as much healthy tissue as possible. This is particularly important with facial tumors.

A brigade surgeon with the 25th Infantry Division in Vietnam, Dr. Engel served in Vietnam from 1969 to 1971. He witnessed firsthand just about every kind of injury and medical problem during those years. He trained with Dr. Mohs after returning from Vietnam and opened his own practice in dermatology in Oak Park in 1974.

"Jack's tumor was a basal-cell carcinoma," said Dr. Engel, "a type that shows little danger of spreading. Along with removing all of the tumor, we wanted to avoid scarring. This is why in this kind of case, I would choose the Mohs technique. Using the Mohs method, we remove very thin layers of skin, bisect or quarter them, and then mark them with various colors of dye. A map is made of the removed tissue, and using the colors, the physician can pinpoint the exact location of any residual tumor when each subsequent specimen is viewed under the microscope."

"In Jack's case, the tumor-involved area was pie-shaped, and we cut it into four quadrants," Dr. Engel said. "Each quadrant was marked with red and blue dye and processed by the frozen section technique. We can stain and section a piece of tissue in approximately ten minutes. In Jack's case we found residual tumor in segment one. So we went back to the tumor site and removed an additional layer of skin, but only from segment one."

"It's been four years without a recurrence," said Jack. "Today I have no cancer and only a very small scar to remind me that once I did."

This year 450,000 Americans will develop skin cancer, and between 7,000 and 8,000 will die from the disease. Skin cancer is one of the few malignancies increasing in incidence. Only lung cancer is increasing faster. Predictions are that the total number of skin cancer cases will reach one million annually by the 2010 as people's leisure time and mobility increase exposure to the sun's damaging rays. Fortunately, skin cancer is readily curable.

Cancer occurs when cell growth becomes uncontrolled and masses of them accumulate and form tumors. These growths may be either benign or malignant. Benign tumors may occur in many organs and often appear on the skin. While they are of no significant danger, they may be confused with a cancer or vice versa. It is crucial to diagnose the growth accurately.

A biopsy is critical wherever there is any question in diagnosis. In a biopsy a piece of the growth is submitted for microscopic examination.

A cancer or malignant tumor invades and destroys tissue locally. It can also spread through the bloodstream or the lymph system to distant areas of the body where new cancer cells can then grow. Fortunately, most skin cancers do not spread via the blood or lymph systems.

There are three distinct types of skin cancers:

Basal-cell carcinoma; squamous-cell carcinoma, and malignant melanoma.

"The first two are far more common than the more aggressive and more dangerous melanoma," said Dr. Engel. "Although they may be found in any location on the body, they most often appear on sun-exposed areas such as the scalp, face, arms and hands. The edges of the ear are also favorite spots. One saving factor in skin cancer is that the individual knows something is there. You can feel a bump or you see a sore. A pimple that does not heal, or that heals only to open again, should arouse your suspicion and send you for a professional diagnosis. Any spot that was flat and is now raised or was pale and is now darker should also be checked.

"Basal-cell and squamous-cell cancers have little tendency to enter the blood and lymph systems and are therefore readily cured if recognized early. While melanoma is much more likely to spread through these systems, if treated early, it can be cured, too."

Basal-cell cancer exhibits a number of varying types ranging from a superficial variety of low-grade malignancy to an aggressive, invasive type. In between these two extremes are several others that exhibit varying degrees of aggressiveness.

Squamous-cell cancers, on the other hand, are recognized by grades varying from a least malignant grade one to a most aggressive and malignant grade four.

Malignant melanoma exhibits three basic types distinguished by appearance and history. More important than type in melanoma is the level to which the tumor has penetrated within the skin. Significant studies have provided data which can predict survival based on this level of penetration. These figures, however, are no absolute criteria since each person is unique.

"Exposure to the sun is a leading cause of skin cancer," said Dr. Engel, "and the damage is cumulative. Sun worshippers who pursue that golden tan in their youth often pay the price in later years. Repeated contact with certain chemicals is another cause. Twenty to 30 years ago, X-ray was a popular method of treating acne vulgaris, and today we're seeing skin cancer resulting from that."

"I was a sun worshipper, but no more," said Mary, a 44-year-old school teacher in Raleigh, N.C. Mary sported a lovely tan most of the year. "I had a tumor removed from my left eyelid six months ago, and the doctor recited some statistics on the link between sun and skin cancer. That did it for me."

Today, more children are suffering from skin cancer. Leading doctors say you're never too young to protect your skin from dangerous sun rays. Even infants should wear hats and sunscreens to shield their skin.

"Skin cancer is rare in children, but we're seeing more and more cases in younger and younger chil-

This year 450,000 Americans will develop skin cancer, and between 7,000 and 8,000 will die from the disease.

ren," said Dr. Sidney Hurwitz of Yale University.

National Cancer Institute studies show a rise in skin cancer among the young. Today, a person has a 1-in-150 chance of suffering malignant melanoma. By the year 2000, the odds will shrink to 1-in-100 if the present trend continues.

Noting the cumulative effect of sun rays, Dr. Henry Wiley, of Tampa, Fla., observed that skin cancer may not show up for as long as 20 years after exposure. "If you really want to keep from getting to that point," said Dr. Wiley, "some kind of program should be established early in life."

Skin cancer is far more common among persons living in the Sun Belt states of Florida, Georgia, California, Texas, Arizona and New Mexico.

Skin pigmentation and ethnic origin also are important factors in a person's susceptibility to skin tumors. Those of fair skin and Scandinavian ancestry seem to have the highest incidence of skin cancer. Persons with dark complexions who are of African origin seem to have very little problem with this disorder. It is evident that melanin (pigment) is an asset in reducing susceptibility to this condition.

"And," Dr. Engel cautioned, "all of you sun worshippers can reduce your chances of developing skin cancer by using a sunscreen which allows slow tanning but filters most of the damaging rays. Use it regularly on your face, arms and hands. Also, wearing broad-brimmed hats and lightweight clothing during the summer will help your chances of retaining a healthy skin."

The newer sunscreens are graded for their effectiveness from a low of four to the highest of 15. These numbers are called SPF's (sun protective factors). Four offers little protection, while 15 is almost a complete block. These products are available in non-greasy, non-drying lotions easily applied and have no odor. Sun before 10 a.m. and after 3 p.m. when ultraviolet rays are weakest. Also, don't feel safe on a cloudy day or even under water.

Be aware of the ABCD rule of danger signals of melanoma. The signs are: A) Asymmetry; B) Border irregularity; C) Color, and D) Diameter greater than 6 millimeters. If you notice any of these signs, go immediately to a physician skilled in diagnosing skin cancer because early detection is critical.

"The key with skin cancer, as in any other form of cancer," says Dr. Engel, "is early detection and thorough removal. Follow-up examinations at regular intervals for at least five years are essential in treating this disease and are an integral part of any management program. If recognized early, most skin cancers can be treated conservatively with minimal tissue loss and with a complete return to normal living." ■ resented the 8th Air Force, the 92nd, 401st, 96th, 394th, 100th and the 457th Bombardment Groups and the 361st and the 20th Fighter Groups. There were many more military organizations, both American and British. Acting as escorts for the day were local ROTC groups from American high schools in England. There they were learning a lesson in patriotism, the cost of freedoms and the love of country that text books can't teach.

Many were veterans. Perhaps they had fought alongside some of the soldiers and sailors buried there. Many veterans wore their medals proudly. One could almost see their anguish and pain.

The memorial service began with the invocation from American and British clergy. One of the most moving moments of the entire memorial service came when the combined chapel choirs of RAF Mildenhall and Lakenheath (both American bases) began to sing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." I had never heard it sung before with such feeling. It was moving to hear it echoing over the English countryside, and I am sure it brought many a tear to the eyes of those present. It seemed indeed that the choir was singing to the soldiers and sailors who were laid to rest there, it was almost as if the dead knew, and could hear the tribute being played to them. Since then I can't help but think of the experience that so many of us shared at the cemetery whenever I hear that hymn composed by Julia Ward Howe shortly after the outbreak of the Civil War.

Many wreaths were laid that day around the huge flagpole overlooking Cambridge Cemetery by squadrons active during WWII and several still active today. From the British were many dignitaries with titles the length of one's arm. Charles Price, U.S. ambassador to the Court of St. James's was there, too, of course. It's a tradition that the people show up not because they have to, but because they want to. One and all, they made each person welcome.

After the presentations were made there was a moment of silence followed by Taps, which pierced the air like a cold wet wind on a chill day. The final salute to our friends and fellow countrymen, loved ones all, was a fly by, but this one was different. The "Sally B," a B-17 Flying Fortress, the workhorse of the Army Air Corps during WWII, flew over at treetop level. I felt as if I were back on that hillside during WWII. It was a strange feeling and seemed to last for an eternity, but actually it was just a brief moment. I know it left a lasting impression on all who witnessed the scene.

It makes me proud as an American to know that every year the Americans and British honor all the men and women who gave their lives fighting from bases in the United Kingdom. ■

RID YOUR PET OF FLEAS & TICKS

STARTING IN 15 SECONDS!

Two years of testing by Scientists, Veterinarians and Kennels has proven that Pet Shield works to rid your pet of fleas and ticks starting in just 15 seconds after securing the collar, and surrounds your pet with a blanket of protection from head to tail.

Pet Shield emits intense ultrasound waves that drives fleas and ticks from your pet without harming or disturbing him. No smelly, dangerous chemicals or powders. It is water resistant and inaudible to humans and all breeds of dogs or cats. Space age electronic technology and a custom microcircuit all make this the most effective pest eliminator your pet could possibly have and it won't damage his skin as other collars might.

VFW Never Too Busy to Help

Young and old, or in between, the VFW, wherever it has Posts, can be counted on to help or recognize them in many ways, as these pictures show.

Jim Halter, a charter member of Post 3371, Wichita, Kans., and a WWI veteran, and his wife Mable will celebrate their 75th wedding anniversary on May 27. He is 96 and Mrs. Halter is 92.

A WWI Navy yeoman, Gertrude Danby, center, receives a U.S. Flag for the nursing home where she lives. The Flag and an Ohio state flag, not shown, were the gifts of Post and Auxiliary 8218, Napoleon, Ohio. With her are Post and Auxiliary officers and members and home officials.

Ralph Fisher, a member of Post 3297, Delaware, Ohio, was the subject of a feature in the Delaware Gazette recalling WWI. He will be 92 in May and is anxious to contact comrades from the 324th Field Artillery, 83rd Division.

VA Administrator Thomas K. Turnage becomes a Life Member of the VFW. With him are Jr. Vice Commander G.P. (Jerry) Miserandino, of the District of Columbia Department, and Commander Michael W. Riordan, of Post 1830. By becoming a Life Member, he helped the Post receive its perpetual charter.

Chaplain Joe Sullivan and Commander Frank Gavin, of Post 613, Quincy, Mass., present a $5,000 check to Marie Strazzula for Step 1, the southshore's mental health program designed as an early intervention service. Marie is the daughter of Sandy Slavek, chairperson of Step 1's parent-teacher council.

Voluntary Member Benefits: What They Mean to You

At one time or another, most of you have received information regarding the array of VFW-sponsored member benefits.

Three of the more popular benefits available to VFW members in good standing are the $2,500 no-cost-to-the-member Personal Accident Plan, the Prescription Drug & Vitamin Program and the VFW Travel Service.

The other benefits include three types of life insurance, two types of accident insurance, three types of medical expense insurance, a cancer supplement insurance and a discount merchandise buying program.

The VFW-sponsored life, health and accident insurance programs are all of the supplemental type, designed to add to — not replace — other coverages you may have. They are group policies, chosen for quality coverage, economical rates and ease of enrollment. You can add or change benefits and insureds with a minimum of effort.

Each member benefit carries the VFW Seal of Approval. This signifies that in the opinion of National Headquarters these benefits meet VFW requirements for quality, fair pricing and service after the sale.

Before the VFW Seal of Approval is affixed to any benefit program, a great deal of time and energy is spent by National Headquarters negotiating with and investigating the company offering the program. This includes researching its history of service and financial standing. In the case of group insurance programs, the benefits and premiums are carefully weighed against many factors, including membership need and premium dollar value compared to other available programs. The VFW is an unusual market, and programs selected are those most beneficial to the majority of the membership.

Many companies offer insurance to veterans. Some of the companies and the insurance they offer are good; others are not. Some advertising implies that the program is sponsored by a veterans' group, when in fact it is not. Watch for the official VFW Seal of Approval as an assurance of authenticity and value.

The VFW Insurance Department is ready and able to answer any questions you may have about any or all VFW-sponsored insurance programs. For questions or service of any kind, write to VFW Insurance Department, Broadway at 34th St., Kansas City, MO 64111. Or call toll free 1-800-821-2606. In Missouri call toll free 1-800-237-1765. In Kansas City, Mo., and its environs, call 561-2338. Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Central Standard Time, any business day.

$1000 A Month With Just A Hack Saw!

© by Philip E. Brancato Sr. 1988

Yes, you can make $1000 a month and more with just a hack saw in your spare time.

Will You Get Rich?

No, you will not get rich, but you can make over $1000 a month in your spare time and have a ball doing it.

I tried all those "Get Rich" gimmicks that are advertised, that never tell you anything until you've sent them your $25, and then you find out their gimmicks were not for you. Well, I've tried them all and I'm still not rich.

All I ever wanted was something I could do in my spare time with my hands, make a little money and enjoy myself and not have to buy $3000 worth of tools or merchandise to do it.

Believe It Or Not

I found the most enjoyable and profitable business working with my hands and the only tools I use are a hack saw and measuring tape. The really nice thing about it is any man, woman or ten-year-old can do it.

What Do I Do?

I make beautiful indoor/outdoor P.V.C. pipe furniture. Such as chairs, lounges, tables, swings, and all kinds of baby furniture out of P.V.C. pipe; and have been for 10 years. P.V.C. pipe furniture is the hottest selling furniture on the market today, because it is unique and beautiful and will not rot or rust and it will virtually last a life time.

Profit Unbelievable!

The fantastic part of this business is the profit.

Just go look at some of this furniture in the stores and see some of the unbelievable prices it is selling for.

A chaise lounge that costs $62.25 in material and three hours of work is selling for over $228 in the stores. I can sell my chaise lounge for anything I think my labor is worth. For once, the big manufacturing companies cannot compete with me or you on prices. You will find you will have more orders than you want!

Where can you buy the P.V.C. Pipe?

You can buy the P.V.C. pipe from any local hardware store to start. Plus I will supply you with the name and address of one of the largest manufacturers of pipe, fitting, cushions, and table tops who will sell to you at wholesale prices and you do not have to buy a minimum amount, plus I will supply you with my shop manual and twenty detailed shop drawings with pictures and measurements of twenty different designs.

Do you need my shop drawings

No, you don't need my shop drawings unless you want to save hundreds of hours of trial and error work and thousands of dollars that I had to spend before I finally found the right design and measurements and tricks to the manufacturing of P.V.C. pipe furniture. I only wish that when I started, I could have bought these shop drawings and I would have gladly paid $100 for just one of them.

I will pay you!

Yes, I will pay you $25 for any unique design shop drawing that I can use in my collection and workshop manual.

How do you start?

- 1) Decide if you like to work with your hands to create things and want to make money.
- 2) Can you afford $12.00 for my shop manual and twenty drawings.
- 3) Send me your name and address along with your check for $12.00 to:

CONVENTION
NEWSCHICAGO IS CALLING

Be sure to register early for the 89th National Convention from Aug. 19 to 26.

By doing so, you will save $2 on the regular registration fee of $8. And remember that each Post is required to register at least one delegate.

Major figures from a wide variety of walks of life will address delegates and receive prestigious VFW awards during the sessions. Throughout the Convention issues vital to VFW membership relating to national security, veterans' entitlements and the Veterans Administration will be discussed as resolutions are adopted or rejected.

From these resolutions, the newly-elected Commander-in-Chief, working with VFW committees after the Convention, will select priority goals that will receive intense attention during the 1988-89 year.

Under the VFW's rotational system, Sr. Vice Commander-in-Chief Larry W. Rivers, representing the Southern Conference, is expected to be elected to succeed Commander-in-Chief Earl L. Stock, of the Eastern Conference. In all likelihood, Jr. Vice Commander-in-Chief Wally Hogan, from the Big Ten (Midwest), will be elected to the office now held by Rivers.

Thus, much interest will surround the selection of a candidate for Junior Vice Commander-in-Chief from the Western Conference.

At the annual Mid-Winter Conference in Washington, the National Council of Administration voted to hold the 1992 National Convention in Indianapolis, the 1993 National Convention in Houston and the 1994 National Convention in Kansas City, site of the VFW National Headquarters.

These cities were presented to the Council by National Chief of Staff Paul E. Wampler, Jr., and agreed upon by the National Time and Place Committee.

Chairman Charles Kinney, of the Awards and Citations Committee, told the Council that the committee had recommended President Ronald Reagan as recipient of the Eisenhower Distinguished Service Award.

He added, however, that, if Reagan would not be able to attend the Distinguished Guests Banquet on the evening of Aug. 22 that the award be presented to retired Army Gen. John W. Vessey, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who recently acted as Presidential emissary in negotiations with the Vietnamese in attempting to resolve the POW/MIA issue. Kinney said Gen. Vessey would be acceptable in his own right.

The Council agreed and endorsed the committee's recommendation.

Others to be honored, as presented by Kinney and approved by the Council, were: Secretary of the Army John O. Marsh, Americanism Award; Lt. Gen. Colin L. Powell, President Reagan's National Security adviser, Armed Forces Award; Rep. Henry Hyde (Ill.), Van Zandt Citizenship Award; Charles Kuralt, CBS newsman and 1950s regional Voice of Democracy winner, News Media Award; and Dick Howser, the late manager of the Kansas City Royals, Hall of Fame Award posthumously.

National Convention Director Omar Kendall advises that if any VFW member is aware of any color guard, drill team or marching unit, the person to be notified is J. Robert Brady, who chairs the National Marching Units and Parade Committee. His address is 319 Tadmar Road, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15237. Site of these contests on Aug. 22 will be Grant Park South. ■

Jackie Gleason

Intimate
Music
For Lovers

In the early 1950's, Jackie Gleason recorded a startling and wonderful series of hit albums. Only recently unearthed from the Capitol Records archives, these wonderful albums provide the kind of great listening entertainment you will want to hear again and again. Conducting an all-star studio orchestra, he brings you a treasury of the world's most beautiful love songs. With lush string instrumentals, the comet of Bobby Hackett playing the exquisite melodies, and the full rich sound you expect from a big orchestra, you get the most memorable hits of this fabulous series. Two albums' worth of beautiful listening, it's a rare discovery not to be missed. We promise you'll enjoy this collection like none you've ever owned or your money back. Absolutely no questions asked.

MEN PAST 40

Troubled With Getting Up Nights - Pains In Back, Legs,
Nervousness, Tiredness

If you are disturbed by these symptoms, your troubles may be caused by glandular inflammation of your prostate. Although many people mistakenly think surgery is the only answer for this problem, there is a Non-Surgical time-tested treatment available.

The Excelsior Institute Clinic, devoted to the Non-Surgical methods of treatment for diseases peculiar to older men, has a new FREE BOOK that tells how these troubles may be corrected. The Non-Surgical treatments described in this book require no surgery, hospitalization or long periods of convalescence. Treatments take but a short time and the cost is reasonable.

Write today. This book may prove of utmost importance to you. No obligation.

NOW! Get in on the PROFITS in SMALL ENGINE REPAIR

Work part time, full time—right at home—we help you every step of the way.
 No doubt about it... as a small engine pro, you can cash in on the huge demand for qualified men in one of America's fastest growing industries. You'll be able to command top hourly rates of from $25.00 to $30.00 per hour—and that's just for labor.
Plenty of business waiting for qualified men. 65,000,000 Small Engines Are In Use Today!
 That's the official count from the Engine Service Assn., and one-million new engines are being built each month. With Foley-Belsaw training, you can soon have the skill and knowledge to make top money servicing these engines.

Start your own money making business!

Professional Tools and Equipment PLUS 4 hp Engine... ALL YOURS TO KEEP... All at No Extra Cost.

NO EXPERIENCE NECESSARY!

You don't need to be a 'born mechanic' or have any prior experience. Lessons are fully illustrated... so clear you can't go wrong, and with our famous 'learn-by-doing' method you get practical 'hands-on' experience.

Foley-Belsaw Institute, 6301 Equitable Rd. Dept. 51449, K.C., MO 64120

NAM

A PERSONALIZED AND GRAPHIC RECORD OF
YOUR TOUR OF DUTY IN VIETNAM.
FRAMED IN GOLD, READY TO DISPLAY FOR ALL TO SEE.

WHO DARES, WINS!

It is not the critic who counts, not the ones who point out how the strong stumbled, or how the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to those actually in the arena, whose faces are marred by sweat and dust and blood. Who knew the great enthusiasm, the great devotion, and who spent themselves in a worthy cause. These were the winners.

—Theodore Roosevelt

Vietnam... It was far away. It was hot. It was bloody. It was Vietnam. The dirtiest war in America's history. A war fought against an almost unseen enemy. Brutal to both mind and spirit. There were no flags waving, no bands playing to welcome you and none when you came home.

For Vietnam vets the memories of the time they spent, the battles they fought and men they served with have become an inner strength. Yet, until now they could only be memories, no more! Now those memories can be commemorated in a very unique and personal way.

The First Personalized Vietnam Tour Of Duty Service Plaque

After years of in-depth research into Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force records and archives, we've identified all of the major combat and support units assigned to the Military Assistance Command, Vietnam (MACV). And, we've created a detailed, historically accurate Order of Battle map depicting their assignments, responsibilities, and important actions against the enemy in a unique and graphic format.

For All Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force Veterans

If you served in Vietnam anytime between 1963 and 1975, we have the combat history of your unit, and can create an authentic and personalized history of your tour of duty. A personal tribute to those who paid their dues and became winners in the eyes of history.

CIA Briefing Map Identifies Your Unit

All of this information has been mounted onto an official CIA briefing map which measures 30"x18" and is framed in gold. This would be the Order of Battle at exactly the time when you were there. Major combat units are identified by their shoulder patches or unit crests to add color and authenticity to the map. Also depicted are the opposing forces of the NVA and the Viet Cong.

After Action Report

Included on your Tour of Duty Commemorative Plaque is your personal "After Action Report." This memorializes the action and accomplishments of your unit... the battalion or regiment you served with... the unit you'll never forget.

Personal Brass Presentation Plate

Affixed to the plaque will be a personal brass plate engraved with your name, rank, dates of service and where served. This will complete the link between those who were in the Armed Forces during the Vietnam years, and those who fought or served in other American Wars.

Your Personal Decorations Will Also Be Featured

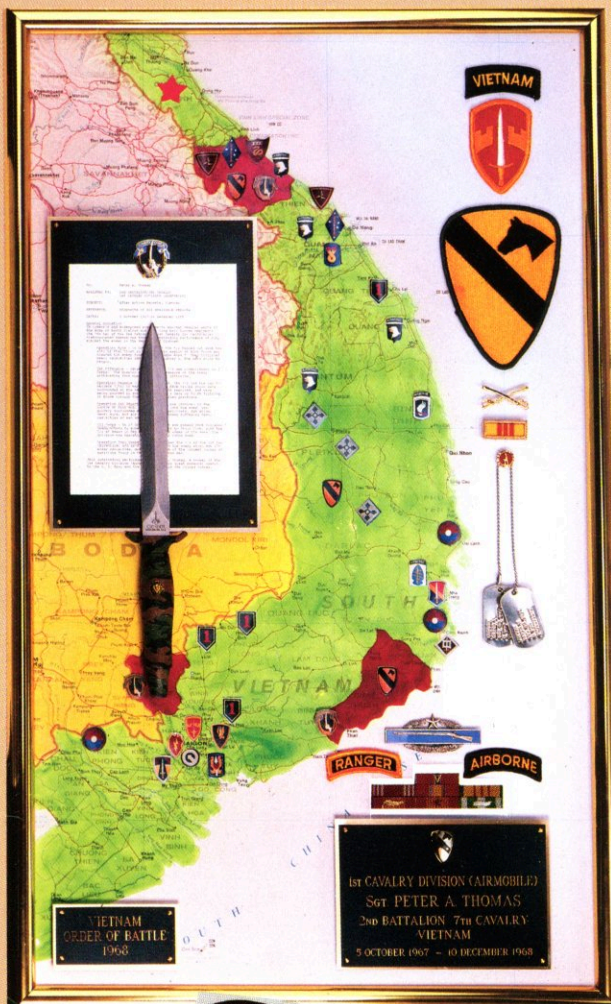

You served with pride. You distinguished yourself as an American Fighting Man. This commemorative plaque would not be complete if your personal decorations were not displayed as authentic documentation of your service and courage. So, they will be mounted with your badges, insignia and chevrons, even your dog tags.

Why You Will Be Delighted With Your Personalized Vietnam Tour Of Duty Plaque.

Back when we were first considering whether to produce the Vietnam Commemorative Tour of Duty Service Plaque, we were pretty much in the same situation you're in now. We knew the archives and records were there, somewhere in the depths of the Pentagon and the Office of the Chief of Military History, but it wasn't until we found what we needed, that we knew we really had something great.

As it turned out, the maps and records furnished to us by the Defense Mapping Agency and various Division and Regimental archives were far better than we could possibly have imagined. Here was stuff we never knew existed. We were able to recreate the Order of Battle at any time from 1963 to 1974. This is the kind of thing you can get excited about whether you're a Vietnam veteran or not. We knew right then, we would have a winner with the Vietnam Personalized Tour of Duty Plaque. We're sure you'll agree.

If your personal plaque is not everything we say it is, return it, and you've lost nothing. But our hunch is, if you were one of those who served with pride in Nam... you'll keep it.

Special Bonus Video Cassette
With your order, you will also receive a FREE video cassette featuring the combat activities which took place at the time when you were in Vietnam. This hour-long action program will bring back to your memory those pressure-filled moments when you were a member of a great fighting team. A perfect companion to your personalized Vietnam commemorative recognition plaque.

YOU HAVE THREE TOUR OF DUTY PLAQUE OPTIONS

OPTION I: A COLLECTIBLE M16 A1 ASSAULT RIFLE. To give your Tour of Duty plaque the drama that it justly deserves, we will mount a detailed replica of the M16 on the center of your plaque. This version of the M16 is perfectly safe. It cannot fire actual rounds. It will operate on special blow back cartridges which are ejected exactly like the real weapon. It can be removed. This version sells for $495.00.

OPTION II: THE CLASSIC MKII COMBAT KNIFE VERSION. This knife, with its camo grip and serrated blade, will be personalized with your Division or Regimental crest etched on the blade. The grip will be further personalized with the medallion of your particular branch of service. Your MK will be released mounted at the base of your personalized after-action report of your unit so that its unique balance, heft, and feel can be appreciated. A companion quick-release sheath is included. The price of this version is $395.00.

OPTION III: THE CUSTOM ORDER OF BATTLE MAP. As a third alternative, we can create your personalized Vietnam Tour of Duty Plaque without any embellishments. This version will still be personalized and will contain all the features as the M16 or the MKII Combat knife versions. The price of this standard version is $295.00.
